REMINDERS

You should see 5-6 companies during your session. Rotate tables after no more than 15 minutes.

Discussion topics may include: current company innovations, projects of interests, responsibilities/role of developers within the organization, and opportunities for new hires.

Questions you can use to continue conversation are below:
- What do you enjoy the most in your day-to-day work?
- What is the typical path for an entry-level engineer to progress upwards in your company?
- What are some challenges that you currently see in the industry and how does your company plan to get in front of or overcome these challenges?
- What classes or experiences can students participate in while at Columbia to prepare them for a position at your company?
- What resources/outlets do you recommend students follow in order to keep abreast of current issues and trends?
- What are some critical things that students should know before entering the professional world?
- What common missteps do you often see students make in the application/interview process?
- Do you have employee training or mentor programs to support beginner professionals in your company?
