As a Columbia Chemistry major, I can...

• Approach issues in chemistry from a multidisciplinary perspective
• Perceive patterns and structures to formulate hypotheses
• Investigate hypotheses using scientific theory, research methods, experimental design
• Analyze, evaluate, interpret experimental data
• Organize and visualize experimental results
• Interpret and critique scientific texts, presentations, and primary literature
• Clearly communicate scientific concepts and results orally and in writing, to different audiences
• Work methodically and accurately
• Collaborate on team projects
• Develop creative solutions to complex problems
