As a Columbia Art History & Archaeology major, I can...

Analyze and interpret visual information and media

Evaluate and critique works of art and art theory in their aesthetic, historical, and sociopolitical contexts

Conduct interdisciplinary and historical research

Develop inventive solutions to complex situations

Synthesize information from visual, written, and multimodal sources

Employ evidence to support or refute an argument

Collect and evaluate sources and the quality of information

Write clear, organized, and persuasive texts

Understand and translate across cultures and perspectives

Communicate complex ideas orally

Navigate ambiguity and uncertainty
